KEYS OF KNOWLEDGE

THE KINKAJOU

This animal is nicknamed "honey bear" because of the way in which it smacks its lips in pleasure when eating juicy fruit.

The Kinkajou enjoys variety in its menu. Besides fruit and plants, it dines upon birds, small mammals and other animals.

The South American Kinkajou has a long powerful tail with which it can travel through treetops much like the monkey.

The Kinkajou has dark gold or brown fur that is popular with women as an adornment. Large numbers are trapped yearly.

Kinkajous can be tamed to become excellent pets. In captivity, they have been known to live healthily for nineteen years.

Jest for Fun

Riddle: What can a person always count on?
Answer: His fingers.

Patient: Doctor, every time I raise my arm it hurts.
Doctor: Well, don't raise it then.

Customer: How much does that diamond ring cost?
Jeweler: Five thousand dollars!
Customer: Wow! How much is that one?
Jeweler: Wow wow!

Mother (to Jimmy who is saying his prayers): Jimmy, I can't hear a word you're saying.
Jimmy: But I wasn't speaking to you.

Riddle: What is the logical way of reaching a conclusion?
Answer: Take a train of thought.

Riddle: What did the man say when he rang the doorbell?
Answer: I don't give a rap.

Al: The school orchestra played Beethoven last night.
Joe: Who won?

Riddle: Why did the man put his girl friend's picture in his watch?
Answer: Because he thought she would love him in time.

Father: Son, this is going to hurt me more than it does you.
Son: Maybe, but not in the same place.

Riddle: Why are parents so proud of their newly born child?
Answer: Because he's a howling success.

Father: Yes, son, I began life as a barefoot boy.
Son: Well, I wasn't born with shoes on either.

First Otter: Sir, you are a (r) otter!
Second Otter: What (r) you saying?

Employer: (to new secretary): I hope your punctuation is good.
Secretary: Oh yes, sir — I always get to work on time.

Riddle: Why is a bank like a riverbed?
Answer: Because it's full of deposits.

Riddle: What did the angry elevator say to the passenger?
Answer: Don't try to get a rise out of me.

Salesman: Madame, this machine will cut your housework in half.
Housewife: Wonderful, I'll take two.

Lady: I'd like you to make a jacket for my poodle.
Tailor: Certainly — bring your dog in for a fitting.
Lady: I can't do that — I want it to be a surprise for him.

Riddle: When is a leather chair not a leather chair?
Answer: When it's sat in (satin).

Teacher: Johnny, it's ten o'clock! You should have been here an hour ago!
Johnny: Why, what happened?

Guide: This tower goes back to Henry the Eighth.
Tourist: Why, what's the matter with it?

DINOSAURIA

Styracosaurus

With seven sharp horns fronting and rimming its head, the styracosaurus was a dangerous dinosaur. Living in the Upper Cretaceous period some seventy million years ago, this nearly twenty-foot-long creature, despite its fierce appearance, was a vegetable-eater. Its teeth sat in rows and worked like scissors, cutting the plant food rather than crushing it. It traveled in large herds along the many swamps of that ancient period and wandered onto the dry, shrub-covered plateaus. Its horns, and head shield or bone "collar," marked it as one of a varied group of horned saurians.

The length from the tip of the styracosaurus's nose to the end of its collar was seven feet. The spike-nasal horn rose almost two feet.

Even the mighty flesh-eaters feared the styracosaurus, for one jab or slash of its horns could tear apart its attacker.
